2. RESIDENT INSTRUCTION AND CONTINUING EDUCATION

Primary Teaching Responsibility

Texas A & M University: Teach one course per year; supervise masters thesis and doctoral dissertation. Committee member of numerous Ph.D. dissertation and master's theses

Washington State University: Teach one course per year and supervise undergraduate senior projects and graduate thesis. Served as major professor and committee member for numerous graduate (Master of Arts in Interior Design, Master of Science in Landscape Architecture) and undergraduate senior projects.

The University of Georgia: My primary teaching responsibilities were in the School of Environmental Design (SED) undergraduate and graduate programs in landscape architecture. I taught two to three courses per academic year based on a 40% E.F.T) with SED. I also served as major advisor, reader, and reading committee chairman for graduate theses and advisor for undergraduate senior design projects. Areas of instruction are landscape analysis, human ecological planning and design, urban design, community design, and independent studies.

I served as major professor for 7 Masters of Landscape Architecture (MLA) thesis; reader or chairman of reading committee for 10 MLA thesis and 2 Master of Historic Preservation thesis; and design advisor for 20 Bachelor of Landscape Architecture senior design projects.
